

Laying lawn under photovoltaic panels

Overview

Shaded plants require less water and help to keep the temperature under the panels cooler, in turn maximizing the panels efficiency. Other options include rocks or mulch on top of landscape cloth to reduce the possibility of unwanted growth for a cleaner lower maintenance. Blog By Joe Lawrence, PRO-DAIRY Forage Systems Specialist and the CCE Ag-Solar Program Work Team Proper planning for the use of land within a solar array is critical to a successful project. Lots of power company installs are doing rocks painted white. When I do, I am setting them over raised garden. You've probably seen those vast solar farms stretching across fields - but have you ever wondered what's happening beneath those gleaming panels?

Well, it turns out the choice of turf under photovoltaic arrays isn't just about aesthetics. Proper installation of the foundation and the materials used can significantly impact the efficiency, durability, and overall performance of your solar energy system.
